It would take several years of highly dangerous undercover infiltration, to crack into the secret world of Massachusetts' most notorious crime gang, the "Boston Bandits."

ANGEL OF DEATH (Docu-drama 1 x 94 min)

Efren Saldivar always preferred the graveyard shift at Glendale Adventist Medical Center, where he worked as a respiratory therapist. It was during the late hours of the night, when Saldivar would inject his patients with a drug suppressing their breathing, paralyzing, and eventually killing them. Though doctors would eventually find the therapist in possession of the illicit drugs and fire him, it would be several years before detectives could uncover enough evidence to convict Saldivar.

DANGEROUS COMPANY (Docu-drama 1 x 94 min)

The life of an international drug trafficker is seedy and extremely dangerous, and exactly the kind of life a couple of Kentucky bluebloods decided to lead. They decided to team up to form "The Company," the front for their drug smuggling business. As the operation grew, so too did the paranoia and betrayal. Arrests would eventually break apart the team, allowing investigators to get the jump on the dangerous and, in the final days, murderous "Company."

BOYS OF H COMPANY (Documentary 1 x 104 min)

In the war in the Pacific, Iwo Jima was crucial to the U.S. as an air base for long-range bombing missions against mainland Japan. The Japanese knew the island's importance and spent years "digging in" in preparation for the inevitable U.S. attack. Seizing Iwo Jima was necessary, but the prize would not come easily. On the morning of February 19, 1945, the boys of H Company stormed the beaches at Iwo Jima, along with 60,000 other Marines. Through compelling first person accounts, dramatic recreations and archival footage, this two-hour docudrama follows in the boot steps of the boys of H Company as they fight one of the costliest battles in U.S. History.
